

Bitpalast® Hosting domain names & redirects

Your good name on the Internet

The address of your web server is just a number, the "IP address." Because numbers can be difficult to remember, you can assign on or more names to an IP address, the "domain names." This makes it possible to access your server using a name such as "www.your-domain.com".

- ✓ More speed & security thanks to Bitpalast® name servers
The translation of names to the IP address is done by "name servers." Bitpalast® has its own name servers (many others don't). This increases Bitpalast®'s independence from third parties, and you gain security and speed in the maintenance of your domain names.
- ✓ "Defensive names" insure your business identity
Just because you have leased a particular domain name doesn't secure you any rights to similar names. For this reason, you shouldn't lease just one name, but also ones with similar spellings. Otherwise you risk free loaders with similar domain names stealing your customers. Example: If you lease the domain "www.lawfirm.com", you should also lease "www.law-firm.com", "www.lawfirm.net", "www.law-firm.net" etc.

- ✓ Not every name needs a web server
It is unnecessary to have a web for every domain – you can redirect a domain name to an existing website. Any number of domains can be redirected to a particular website. Example: If your customer enters "www.domain1.com", the content of "www.domain2.com" is displayed. With a Bitpalast® Redirect,¹ your website is loaded even if the customer makes a mistake inputting the domain name. For all other purposes, you can park a name at Bitpalast® free of charge.²

1) Your advantage of a Bitpalast® redirect is that Bitpalast® web server can transmit any valid status code to the client (e.g. "temporary redirect", "moved permanently" etc.). Some status codes may affect search engine ranking of the domain the redirect forwards to. 2) We only charge domain name lease (see over). © 2007 Bitpalast GmbH. All rights reserved.
